Appendix A: Faculty Mentor

1. Principle: Faculty Mentors assist the EWU departmental Faculty Liaison in the performance of her/his responsibilities within the Concurrent Enrollment Programs. University departments with more than ten (10) high school teachers to supervise may elect to use Faculty Mentors to assist the departmental Faculty Liaison.
2. Duties and Responsibilities: Eastern Washington University faculty who agree to serve as Faculty Mentors agree to
 - a. Adhere to all department established and documented standards, curriculum and syllabi appropriate for the course which the EWU faculty is responsible for
 - b. Assist the departmental Faculty Liaison in training selected high school teachers as needed to meet established and documented department standards appropriate for the course which is being delivered.
 - c. Assist assigned high school teachers in preparing his/her syllabi and course materials according to established and documented department standards. Insure that the courses taught in high schools are the same in quality, rigor, and content as those taught in Cheney or Riverpoint based upon established and documented department standards.
 - d. Conduct a minimum of two on-site evaluative visits per teacher per course within the time of the delivery of the course.
 - e. Provide documented feedback to the high school teachers on his/her course materials, teaching style, content, etc. relative to its alignment with the EWU established and documented departmental standards.
 - f. Provide additional instruction for high school teachers on college-level approaches, techniques, and expectations through workshops, demonstrations, and the annual mandatory summer team meeting.
 - g. Serve as part of the liaison chain between the high school teachers and the appropriate discipline/department coordinator on curriculum and instruction.

Appendix B: Faculty Liaison Duties and Responsibilities

1. Principle: Faculty Liaisons serve Concurrent Enrollment Programs in several important ways that increases Washington State high school student access to higher educational opportunities while insuring student success, academic rigor, and discipline integrity, and maintaining the adherence to Washington State regulation and university accreditation requirements. Serving as a Faculty Liaison is an extensive commitment that is more than classroom visits.

2. Duties and Responsibilities: Eastern Washington University faculty members who volunteer to serve as Faculty Liaisons agree to
- a. Review and select qualified high school instructors in accordance with established and documented departmental standards that are equal to those used in the selection of Quarterly Faculty or Lectures for on-campus course delivery.
 - b. Insure that the courses taught in high schools are the same in quality, rigor, and content as those taught in Cheney or Riverpoint based upon established and documented department standards.
 - c. Insure students in the high school meet the same levels of proficiency with the content material under the same evaluative standards as all other Eastern Washington University students based upon established and documented department standards.
 - d. Provide documented feedback to the high school teachers on his/her course materials, teaching style, content, etc. relative to its alignment with the EWU established and documented departmental standards.
 - e. Instruct the high school teachers on college-level approaches, techniques, and expectations through workshops, demonstrations, and the annual mandatory summer team meeting.
 - f. Serve as part of the liaison chain between the high school teachers and the appropriate discipline/department coordinator on curriculum and instruction.
 - g. Assist the high school teachers in using available university facilities, including but not limited to EagleNet, Canvas, the Writers' Center, and the EWU library to include demonstrating and instructing how to use these resources and assisting their assigned high school faculty to connect with appropriate offices for further assistance.
 - h. Conduct and administer standardized NACEP evaluations of participating high school teachers in the performance of their duties related to EWU courses (if applicable).
 - i. Serve as the primary liaison between the Director of Concurrent Enrollment Programs and the EWU academic department; attend regularly scheduled EWU Faculty Liaison Coordinating Meetings.
 - j. Prepare and maintain the currency of appropriate NACEP documentation for the appropriate department in accordance with the Office of Concurrent Enrollment Programs protocols and procedures. (if applicable)
