

Parking and Transportation Services has adopted the Washington State Disability provisions and infraction fees as determined by RCW Title 46 Motor Vehicle Code. Persons with disabilities must possess a valid Washington state disability license plate or placard.

The permit is authorized for use by the person with disabilities only, per RCW Title 46 Motor Vehicle Code. Any person observed using a disability permit may be required to show Washington state disability identification to any police officer or Parking and Transportation Services parking checker. The operator of the vehicle must have the proper identification, or be physically transporting a passenger having valid state identification. Failure to produce identification may result in an infraction. Parking in a disability space without a permit is subject to a $350 fine. Abuse of an EWU disability permit is a $100 fine. Repeat violators will be required to return the disability permit.
